Christian Brown
-a man of boundless enthusiasm!

By Canon Peter Collins

It was with profound sadness that the Archdiocese of Cardiff received the news that Mr. Christian Brown had died suddenly on Tuesday 29th May aged 53 years. As we pray for his eternal repose, we extend the assurance of our prayers for the comforting of his beloved wife Monica and son Gabriel. He is also survived by his mother Claudine and brother Philip.

He was born as a son of Monmouthshire on August 17th 1964 and spent his early years in Abergavenny and Crickhowell. His early education was undertaken at Moor Park Preparatory School and then he moved on to Downside Abbey School in Somerset. After graduating from the University of Leeds he began his career in public relations with Saatchi and Saatchi. As well as undertaking consultancy in many arenas he played a significant role in developing and promoting the hot air ballooning industry. His contribution to this enterprise earned him the honour of becoming a Freeman of the City of London.

Charitable works

He married Monica in 1997 and their son Gabriel was born in 2002. Monica has described her husband as a man endowed with great charisma and boundless enthusiasm who lived life to the full. He was bursting with ideas and was always eager to create and grasp opportunities every single day. As well as being devoted to his family, Christian nurtured many interests. In 2006 he celebrated his Investiture as a member of the Military Order of the Collar of St.Agatha of Paterno, a body dedicated to charitable works. The Order conferred on Christian a number of honours in recognition of his loyal and generous support. He served as Provincial Prior for a number of years.

Christian cultivated a great love for the arts, especially poetry and history. He enjoyed travelling and was renowned for often making arrangements before consulting Monica and Gabriel regarding their availability! He was also involved in many country sports. He will be fondly remembered by so many friends for his prodigious ability to socialise and entertain.

Christian was awarded the OBE in 2013 for his contribution to a multitude of charities. Having served in the Territorial Army he was a great supporter of the Army Benevolent Fund. For many years he served as an active member of the Llanover Community Council and helped establish the Abergavenny Volunteer Bureau. He was also heavily involved in the Antarctic Heritage Trust and with the charity devoted to the provision of Music in Hospitals and Care Homes. It is poignant that at the time of his death he had been trying to organise a campaign aimed at increasing access to cardiac defibrillators in rural communities.

Service to the Archdiocese

Christian made an immense contribution to the life and wellbeing of the Archdiocese of Cardiff in many capacities. For two years he served as a Trustee of the diocesan charity. He was instrumental in ensuring the development of the Community Hall in the Parish of Our Lady and St.Michael in Abergavenny and was recently supporting the parish community in Usk with an ongoing project. His greatest contribution was undoubtedly his role as Project Manager for the development of The Cornerstone Conference and Community Centre at the Cathedral. With great skill and tenacity he steered our successful application to the Heritage Lottery Fund, securing a contribution of £1.1 million. Christian also played a critical role in arranging for His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to conduct the Official Opening in December 2016. During the last year Christian was once again contributing his time and energy to our plans for the development of the Cathedral and its campus. It was in 2016 that His Grace the Archbishop successfully petitioned the Holy See to appoint Christian as a Knight of the Pontifical Equestrain Order of St.Gregory the Great.

Following a private family funeral at the Church of St.David Lewis and St.Francis Xavier in Usk, a Memorial Mass was celebrated by Archbishop Stack at a packed Cathedral on Monday 25th June at 12.00.p.m.
One hundred and forty people have now booked to travel by coach to Liverpool for the main day of the Eucharistic Congress being held in that city on Saturday 8 September and this is an invitation to join us, says Archbishop George Stack.

Twenty parishes in the Diocese are sending delegates, and I am grateful to Christian Mahoney for the sterling work he has done in making our Diocesan presence felt. He has spoken at a large number of parishes throughout the Diocese and awakened peoples’ interest in this important event in the life of the Church. There are still places available which may be booked at:

• The cost of £65 per delegate will be paid by the parish.
• WHY JOIN IN THE CONGRESS?

ORDEN TO:
• Be a public witness that the Church is alive and contributes significantly to society.
• Share in a unique opportunity to proclaim our faith in Jesus Christ, our Risen Saviour.
• Deepen our relationship with Him in the Eucharist.

• Belong to a community of faith and prayer.
• Be renewed and refreshed so that we can continue to work together to bring people closer to Christ.

The Congress will begin at 10am and conclude with Adoration at 5pm. Many of us will remember the extraordinary scene in Hyde Park, London, during the visit of Pope Benedict XVI when Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament caught the imagination of believers and non believers alike.

The main keynote speaker will be Bishop Robert Robert Barron. He is an acclaimed author, speaker and theologian. He is also the founder of global media ministry “Word on Fire” which reaches millions of people worldwide.

“Adorers” simply means “Let us Adore”. The Eucharistic Congress is a gathering of clergy, religious and lay who promote an awareness of the central place of the Eucharist in the life and mission of the Church – the source and summit of our life of faith.

Vatican awarded international prize for video on migrants, refugees

By Robin Gomes / Vatican News

A Vatican video campaign on migrants and refugees has become internationally-recognized best practice in promoting positive change in society through social advertising.

The International Social Advertising Festival or Pubfilmfestival awarded its “Best Strategy in Social Action” prize to a video made by the Section for Migrants and Refugees of the Vatican Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Promotion. The video was produced by the agency La Machi Communication for Good Causes.

The 12th edition of Pubfilmfestival took place Friday night at the Fernando Rojas Theater of the Circulo de Bellas Artes in Madrid, Spain, in which agencies and advertisers from all over the world took part.

The 3½-minute piece has Pope Francis explaining the 4 active verbs on which he proposes basing the actions of governments, organizations and citizens to engage the problematic of human mobility: to Welcome, to Protect, to Promote, and to Integrate. The video, available in nearly 30 languages, was first shown at the “stock-taking” session for the United Nations Global Compact on Migrants (Puerto Vallarta, Mexico), in December 2017, and in the High Commissioner's Dialogue on Protection Challenges for the Global Compact for Refugees at the Palais des Nations (Geneva). It has also been presented at UN headquarters in New York and many other places worldwide.

“Pope Francis gives the Christian and indeed civilized response to the pressing needs of vulnerable people on the move,” said Fr. Michael Czerny, the Under-Secretary of the Section for Migrants and Refugees of the Dicastery, during the award ceremony.

“In images, music and movement,” he said, “the video makes the Holy Father’s urgent appeal so real.” “We are happy to help this touching and indeed motivating message reach millions of concerned people everywhere.”

The Pubfilmfestival also gave an award to a video-spot on the latest Apostolic Exhortation of Pope Francis, “Gaudete et Exsultate”, on the call to holiness in today’s world. The 2½-minute spot was produced by Vatican Media with the collaboration of the La Machi Agency.

Archbishop receives a relic of one of our earliest Popes

Following the finding of a relic of apostle Pope St. Clement by an environmental waste clearance company, Archbishop George Stack received the relic on behalf of Westminster Cathedral in his capacity as Chair of the Patrimony Committee of the Bishops of England and Wales.

The company discovered the 2000-year-old relic, a bone fragment of the late Pope St. Clement, after a waste haul in central London.

EnviroWaste.co.uk found the relic in a red and gold, wax-sealed case, during a routine collection in central London last year, but workers didn’t realise what they had until it was appraised several days later.

The relic was handed over by James Rubin, founder of EnviroWaste to Archbishop George Stack, in the Lady Chapel, Westminster Cathedral.

Successor to St Peter
Pope St. Clement is considered to be the first apostolic father of the church, the third successor to St Peter and the fourth Pope. He was known as St. Clement of Rome and was Pope from 92 to 101 AD.

It is said he died in 110 AD at the age of 75, making the relic nearly 2,000 years old.

EnviroWaste.co.uk uses a multi-pick up system, meaning waste collectors visit several sites during waste hauls, so pinpointing the exact location it was found is almost impossible, however due to the route schedule on the month in question, they know it would have been in the central London area.

Tradition of venerating relics
Sophie Andreae, Vice Chair, Patrimony Committee, Catholic Bishops’ Conference of England and Wales at Westminster Catholic Cathedral said, “Although very little is known about the life of St. Clement, it would appear that he was the third successor to St Peter in Rome. This is recorded by the early Christian writer Tertullian (c155-240CE).

“Relics are important to Catholics because they are part of the physical remains of a saint after his or her death. Somehow contact with a relic imparts to us a unique link to the divine. Relics of early Christian martyrs were venerated from Roman times and this tradition continues to this day. Whilst the shrines of famous English saints such as St Cuthbert in Durham Cathedral and St Thomas a Becket at Canterbury were destroyed at the English Reformation, on the continent many Catholic churches house relics of important and much revered saints. The Basilica of St Peter’s in Rome is built about the crypt containing the bones of St Peter himself.

Major relics in the Archdiocese
“We are delighted that the relic of St Clement, third Pope after St Peter, is finding a home among the displays of the Treasures of Westminster Cathedral exhibition.”

The body of the martyr priest St John Southworth lies in Westminster Cathedral and is venerated there. In every altar in a Catholic Church there are placed relics of martyrs and saints over which Mass is celebrated, linking us with the martyr saints of the early church.

In the Archdiocese of Cardiff we are blessed with the major relics of St. David Lewis and St. John Kemble.

James Rubin, owner of EnviroWaste said: “You can imagine our amazement when we realised our clearance teams had found a relic belonging to a former Pope – it’s not something you expect to see, even in our line of work. After launching our appeal, we were overjoyed to have the cathedral come forward.

“Choosing an appropriate resting place was very important to us. Therefore, finding out that Westminster Cathedral was the previous owner was amazing. We think this is the best and safest place for the relic due to its importance to the church and to ensure that it won’t get lost again!”

Christian Brown
You can see from the tribute on page 1 what a giant Christian Brown was in terms of his service to the Archdiocese.

He negotiated for and achieved the Lottery grant for the revamp of The Cornerstone, an abandoned church opposite our St David’s Metropolitan Cathedral.

Christian’s enthusiasm and ability brought the funding in and now we have a resource for the whole archdiocese, a meeting place, a place for a get together after Mass and a financial resource.

More will be told of Christian in the August edition of Catholic People, following tributes given at a Mass in the Cathedral on 24 June.

Our priests and deacons
See page 8 of this edition and rejoice on our new priest Fr Robert James, and our new Deacon. Laurence Bryce.

And there is more to come! How lucky we are as an archdiocese to have all this new priestly blood infusing us as a virile Catholic faith.

These young men are enhancing our priestly resources, taking up the burden of serving us laity as our present older priests are.

We are very lucky!

Confirmations
See the pages inside this newspaper. So many young people being confirmed; so many young faces joining we oldies in the Catholic faith.

We congratulate them and those parents, priests and others who have guided them along the road to confirmation.
CONFIRMATIONS AT OUR LADY & ST PATRICK

It was a Mediterranean hot day when four young people St Our Lady & St Patrick’s Church, Maesteg, were confirmed by Archbishop George. They were Thea Ann Thomas, Matthew Clare, Jak Patrick Carson and Daniel Anthony Emeney-Smith.

It was a heart-warming occasion as the Archbishop welcomed them into the Church after the renewal of Baptismal Promises, and following his Homily.

He then laid hands on the candidates, as did the parish priest Father Edmund before each was anointed with the Oil of Chrism with the words “Be sealed with the Gift of the Holy Spirit.

Proud family members looked on as the young people received a hand of applause from the congregation after receiving Communion from Archbishop George.
St Mary’s, at Bridgend, is a new church replacing a former one. The architecture is stunning, breathtaking and was the ideal setting for the welcoming confirmation of a galaxy of young people from the churches in the Bridgend Deanery.

This happy gathering in St Mary’s, packed with relatives and friends of the young people being confirmed, was the ideal setting for the welcoming confirmation of a galaxy of young people from the churches in the Bridgend Deanery. So many young people being received, so many young people receiving the Oil of Chrism, so many young people as a witness to the bright future of the Church as we older ones fade away!

It was a most moving moment as Archbishop George asked the young people to renew their baptismal promises (they would not have remembered them as young babes in arms some 10 to 14 years before). But their parents and relatives remembered and I detected many a moist eye amongst them in this, a great moment in the lives of their girls and boys.

All of us present wish all those lovely young people many blessings on their journey of faith.

Inspirational head teacher retires

This year marks the end of an era for education in Grangetown, as one well known head teacher will retire after thirty eight years of teaching in St. Patrick’s RC Primary School, the last eighteen as headteacher.

Mr. Paul Catris has educated and nurtured hundreds of children in Grangetown by being an inspirational teacher and a stalwart of education, with past pupils of his going on to become architects, policemen, firemen, gardeners, hairdressers and bankers. Several have followed him into teaching – some actually at St. Patrick’s! Many past pupils have also remained in Grangetown and have come back as parents themselves with their own children having Mr. Catris as their Head Teacher.

Paul Catris started at the school shortly after qualifying as a teacher in 1980 and devoted himself to the school and the community for almost four decades, whilst also raising four children with his wife Kathryn. He championed activities in the school that would help build close community ties, from inviting the community into the school for special events to participating in the annual Grangetown Festival Parade and annual Grangetown Inter-school sports day.

During his time as head, he has worked alongside five priests - Fr. Jack Fahy, Fr. Bogdan Wera, Fr. Bill Lloyd, Fr. Ieuan Wyn-Jones and the current Parish Priest of St. Patrick’s RC Church, Canon Mike Evans - in nurturing the pupils faith and putting Gospel values at the centre of school life. He worked under two headteachers, Miss. Peggy Rein and Miss. Christina Barry, and also worked closely with Mr. Martin Boyce, who was Chair of Governors at the school for fifteen years.

Mr. Catris, an all-round sports fan and keen football, rugby and baseball player, was well known in the community for his football skills on the pitch. Under his leadership and coaching, the school’s football, rugby and baseball teams became tough opponents and a difficult team to beat! In 2005 he won an 'Inspirational Teacher Award' from New Directions in recognition of his dedication to ensuring the success of his pupils and his passion for teaching and again in 2017, he won a Cardiff Council 'Inspire Award' for taking a stand against bullying. Pupils and staff will certainly miss him very much as he has been a loyal, hands-on and steadfast leader and he will retire with the respect and love of all.

The school will be hosting a retirement party in the school grounds on July 13th from 4-6 p.m. for pupils and parents, past and present, who would like to wish him well.
New Evangelisation Summit comes to the UK

At the beginning of May, evangelisation representatives from across England and Wales travelled to Brentwood in Essex for the New Evangelisation Summit, an international summit with inspiring speakers sharing the importance of evangelisation.

It was lovely to bring such a large Welsh contingent to the Summit with representation from the different deaneries across the diocese. We also had lots of opportunity to meet people fantastic people working for God’s mission in English dioceses, to share ideas and aspirations. The Summit is broadcast to locations worldwide, this year being the first year it came to the UK. We were also very fortunate to have the founders of the Summit, Josh Canning and Michael Dopp, fly over from Canada to join us.

Do you want to bring NES to your local region?

Get in touch (madeline.page@rcadc.org / 02920365965) and we can look at how we bring this fantastic conference to our hometowns.

Mental Health First Aid:

Mental Health problems are extremely common with one in four people experiencing some kind of mental health problem in any one year.

Depression, stress and anxiety for instance, are widespread problems that affect thousands of people in Wales. Despite this, people do not always feel confident to discuss mental health or to offer the initial support that people need.

Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) is a two-day course which teaches participants how to perform basic ‘first aid’ for those exhibiting signs of mental health distress, just as they are commonly taught first aid for physical problems. Equipped with this knowledge, people are better able to deal appropriately with persons with mental health problems and refer them to the best place to find appropriate help.

In June, the Archdiocese of Cardiff heavily subsidised a MHFA Course and 26 people from the diocese, in a huge range of ministries attended. They included deacons and priests, school chaplains, teachers, SVP volunteers, sign-language interpreters, Ministry of Presence group, and diocesan staff. They are all now better equipped to respond to a person in crisis, to minister to their brothers and sisters in Christ as they welcome and support people with mental health difficulties.

On Saturday 9th June, Sr Monica celebrated her Golden Jubilee of Religious Profession as a Sister of St Joseph of Annecy.

50 years of commitment and dedication is truly something to celebrate and it really was a golden occasion. Friends and family came from Ireland, Australia and Canada to Llantarnam Abbey, Cwmbran and Sisters of St Joseph travelled from various parts of the UK, from Africa, France and India to share in the joy of the day.

The Mass was celebrated by Abp. George Stack joined by Canon John Griffiths, Parish Priest of Cwmbran, and Fr Frank Morrisey OMI from Canada, a long-standing friend of Sr Monica. Family members proclaimed the Readings and the very young grand-nephews, with a little help from the grown-ups, brought the gifts of bread and wine to the Archbishop.

Sr. Monica, originally from Allihies in the far west of County Cork, entered with the Sisters of St Joseph at Llantarnam, over 50 years ago. After training as teacher, Sister taught in senior schools in the Cardiff Archdiocese before being appointed as Novice Mistress. Sister was then elected as Superior General of the Congregation, based in Annecy, France – a post she fulfilled with great vision and energy for 12 years. This involved numerous visits to Sisters not only in Europe but also throughout India and West Africa. Subsequently Sister has become deeply involved in the study and sharing of the spirituality and writings of Fr Jean-Pierre Medaille, the French Jesuit who founded the Sisters of St. Joseph. This latter work is spreading internationally and continues to grow.

In his homily Fr Frank referred to these many achievements, while pointing out that, important as these undoubtedly are, the real celebration is that of the life of commitment and deep prayer which has characterised these 50 years of Sr Monica’s life as a professed Sister of St Joseph. It was in that spirit of faith that Sr Monica then renewed her Vows, re-committing herself to a life of dedication and service as a Sister of St. Joseph.

After the Mass everyone gathered for a celebratory meal with time for meeting one another and recalling events of that 50 year journey. It was a joyous and memorable day for everyone.

Congratulations, Sr Monica. Ad Multos Annos!

Our priests on their annual retreat!

At the end of May, 14 priests of the Archdiocese made their annual retreat at Douai Abbey, a Benedictine centre near Reading.

Archbishop George joined the group for the first two days. Dom Godric Timney, a monk with decades of experience as a school teacher and parish priest, encouraged the gathered clergy with his gentle reminders of the key values which lie at the heart of priestly ministry.

The priests decided to return to Douai for the 2020 diocesan retreat, which will run 11-15 May 2020 and be led by scripture scholar Revd John Hemer, a Mill Hill Missionary.

Welcome to Deacon Laurence

There was an air of celebration at Allen Hall Seminary in London when three of the seminarians were ordained to the Diaconate – and one was for our own diocese. Laurence Bryce, who is originally from Portsmouth and studied at Cardiff University, has been in formation for the Archdiocese of Cardiff since 2013. Deacon Laurence spent a successful year long pastoral placement at St. Philip Evans, Llanederyn and for the past year has worked part time at Newman House, the Catholic Chaplaincy to the University of London.

Laurence was ordained to the Diaconate along with his classmates by Archbishop George who reminded the Deacons to be that the Diaconate should not be seen as a ‘transitional ministry’ on the way to priesthood. Rather it is an office that is retained for the rest of their lives with a purpose of focussing the faithful.

He said: “The bishop and the priest retain the diaconal office whilst they minister to God’s people, empowering them to fulfill their baptismal role as a priestly people. A telling reminder of that truth is given by Pope Francis when he washes feet at the Mass of Chrism and takes off his vestments to reveal the deacon’s stole.

“In sharing in the Sacrament of Orders, the deacon is authorised and empowered to order, direct, focus the attention of the people on their dignity as baptised members of the Body of Christ”.

Summer of Ordinations begins as new priest ordained

As the Church celebrated the early martyrs Ss. Marcellinus and Peter (2nd June), there was celebration at Cardiff Cathedral as Archbishop George Stack ordained Fr. Robert James to the priesthood.

Fr. James who is originally from St. Patrick’s parish in Grangetown, Cardiff, completed his formation at Allen Hall Seminary in London and was presented to the Archbishop for ordination by Canon Roger Taylor, the seminary rector. The congregation sang with gusto the hymn ‘Sweet Heart of Jesus’ in reference to the impending celebration of the Feast of the Most Sacred Heart.

Present among the congregation with Fr. Robert’s extensive family including his parents, siblings, nephews and nieces. Also present were members of various faith communities around Cardiff due to his long standing connection with Cardiff University and the associated chaplaincy.

During the homily, Archbishop George spoke of the wider question society has for those who seemly turn their back on the world in response to God’s call i.e. “Are you real?”. He reminded all present that the work of formation has only just begun and to be truly authentic in ministry, word and action, Fr. Robert will continue to unite himself more closely through prayer and his ministry to Christ whom he will encounter in the thousands of people he will meet in the decades of ministry ahead (pray God).

The Ordination Mass was followed by celebrations in the Cornerstone. The newly ordained Fr. Robert James will take up his first post as assistant priest within All Saints parish Newport in the coming months. The ordination marks the start of a summer of ordinations for the diocese with two more ordinations to the priesthood and an ordination to the Diaconate in the coming weeks.

Please continue to keep all of our seminarians in your prayers and continue daily prayers for an increase of Vocations within our diocese. Ad multos annos.
